COALITION FORMS TO FIGHT HOPKINS

—and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the Angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid. And the Angel said unto them, fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the City of David a saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you: ye shall find the Babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the Angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men. And it came to pass, as the Angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us. And they came with haste, and found Mary and Joseph, and the Babe lying in a manger. —Luke 11:8-16.

Dionne Babies to Receive Toys, But Not Live Puppies

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 24. — (UP)—The poor little rich Dionne quintuplets have been very, very, passably good in recent weeks, but nevertheless they won't get the Christmas presents they wanted most, Santa Claus revealed today. The four and a half year old sisters, who haven't quite made their first million, wanted some "lives dogs" for Christmas, but Santa put his foot down, albeit with "some difficulty." He said he didn't think live dogs were proper playthings for young ladies of their standing. Santa, in the person of Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, their physician, said the girls had wanted dogs ever since their association with some spaniel pups in their last motion picture. As a concession, Dr. Dafeo will give the girls some toy dogs tomorrow, but said he doubted if they would be satisfied with anything less than the real thing. Santa Claus Greeted It appeared likely that there might be a rumpus, inasmuch as the quintuplets have been giving Santa Claus some very special attention. When Dr. Dafeo dressed

OVER THOUSAND BAGS OF CANDY TO BE ISSUED

Twelve hundred bags of candy, nuts and oranges will be distributed in Memorial hall Saturday at 8 p. m. in the final activity of the Christmas program conducted by the Retail Merchants association and the Chamber of Commerce. The distribution will be conducted by Howard Hall post, American Legion, with Fred Clark assisting as Santa Claus. No program is planned in connection with the distribution. Refined toys for more than 600 poor children of the city were delivered to homes Saturday by members of the fire department and a group of men who contributed their trucks and services. Many organizations have obtained names of families from their relief department for the distribution of baskets. Limited parking regulations in the downtown district will be put in force again Tuesday, Mayor W. B. Cady warned motorists. The limited parking was not enforced during the last week due to Christmas shopping.

SEVEN U.S. ARMY MEN KILLED BY STRANGE BLAST

Airplane Falls In Flames Near Alabama Town; Cause Mystery VICTIMS BLOWN TO BITS Only Fragments Of Four Bodies Gathered Up In Early Morning

UNIONTOWN, Ala., Dec. 24 — (UP)—Something extraordinary occurred aboard the army bomber which crashed in flames last night, after an explosion heard 20 miles away, killing seven men. The bodies of all were horribly segmented and the segments were scattered over an area of 15 acres. The largest piece of the plane which could be found was a tiny segment of its tail bearing the single word, "Army." Army officers supervising the task of gathering the pieces of human bodies and fragments of airplane from the black mud of the rain-soaked prairie country, were sure of only one thing—that it hadn't been an ordinary airplane accident. There quite apparently had been a terrific explosion aboard the ship just before it crashed. They received a suggestion of sabotage in silence. An army board of inquiry will go into that later. Early today, only the fragments of four bodies had been gathered and these fragments could not be ascribed to one identity. The pieces making up three more bodies still were to be found. The crew of the ship was as follows: First Lieut. James Dennis Underhill, 28, Morgantown, N. C., pilot. First Lieut. John W. Pollard, army air reserve, Waco, Cal., co-pilot. Capt. Fred Rueb, 36, army medical corps, Letterman hospital, San Francisco presidio. Second Lieut. John Hyde, 30th regiment, San Francisco presidio. Private Shelton S. Johnson, Northville, N. Y. SPANISH SOLDIERS TO SPEND HOLIDAY IN BITTER BATTLE

First Line Of Loyalist Trenches Taken By Rebels; Men Fighting In Snow

HENDAYE, FRENCH-SPANISH FRONTIER, Dec. 24. — (UP)—Fighting through blinding snow and against an icy wind, Spanish Nationalist troops today stormed and captured the first line Loyalist trenches on formidable Montsech, dispatches from the front reported. Navarese troops, moving off at dawn in the sector 33 miles north of Lerida, attacked the Loyalists with hand grenades and followed up with the bayonet, it was asserted. At 4,500 feet altitude, slipping in the blood stained snow, the Nationalists and Loyalists fought hand to hand until the Republican government troops were thrown back, according to dispatches. The Nationalists said that their first and second columns, which were based on Balaguer, had advanced north and south of heavily fortified Montsech. They said that a third army had established a seven mile deep foothold on the Loyalist side of the Segre river and that a fourth army captured the powerfully defended Grosa Hills east of the Segre. More than 500,000 men—286,000 Nationalists and 240,000 Loyalists—were engaged in battle on a 50-mile front knowing that for either side decisive defeat might mean overwhelming disaster. In the first day's operations the Nationalists claimed an average gain of 7 1/2 miles and the capture of 2,000 men. The Loyalists admitted having been thrown back in the early phase of the opening day's operations but asserted officially that they recaptured all lost ground and particularly that they inflicted a severe defeat on the Italian Fascist divisions aiding the insurgents. It was a battle on a scale and of a savagery seldom equaled in the 29 months of the most terrible civil war in modern history. The physical enormity of a battle which engaged Spaniards and the Arab Moslems, the Germans and Italians, and the Nationalists in which every engine of modern warfare was invoked, was emphasized by the conditions under which the battle was being fought. TWO CHILDREN OF SLAIN MAN HAVE EARLY HOLIDAY ELYRIA, Dec. 24. — (UP)—The Rousseau children—Geraldine, 11, and Sarah, 9—were given their Christmas presents last night because of a family emergency. They had no Christmas tree. Their father was killed and their mother was wounded while trying to steal one for them—and that was the reason Santa Claus came 24 hours in advance. Will Case, 84 year old farmer, who shot William Rousseau, 38, and his wife because they were chopping down a fir tree on his farm, chewed gum in jail and said he didn't mind staying there over Christmas. Rousseau was unemployed. His mother took his children and when she gave them the dollar's worth of dime store presents their parents had bought for them, she told them what had happened. "Daddy must have thought a lot of us," Geraldine said. HEFFNER DIVORCE Suit for divorce, charging cruelty, was filed in Common Pleas court Saturday by Mrs. Naomi M. Heffner against Gail W. Heffner, Salt Creek township. The petition asks that the plaintiff's maiden name of Bechtol be restored.

"Tactful" Campaign Mapped To Prevent Confirmation In Senate ELECTION ACTION CITED Political Activity In Last Voting To Be Studied, Leaders Hint

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24. — (UP)—A coalition of senate Republicans and conservative Democrats was forming today to fight senate confirmation of President Roosevelt's nomination of Harry Hopkins as secretary of commerce. Prominent Republican leaders, who refused comment on speculation that Hopkins' promotion constituted a boost toward the 1940 New Deal-Democratic presidential nomination, predicted that a "tactful" campaign would result in the rejection of his appointment. Many enemies of Hopkins, however, believed that the nomination would be confirmed on the theory that the President should be given wide latitude in the selection of his cabinet. Hopkins will take the oath of his new office today in the oval office of the President. Former Secretary of Commerce Roper's resignation became effective at midnight. Expenditures Cited Coalition leaders hoped to obtain anti-Hopkins arguments from the report of the senate campaign expenditures committee, which recently charged that election contests in Kentucky, Tennessee and Pennsylvania were governed in part by politics in relief. Chairman Sheppard, D., Tex., ordered the committee to meet Monday in an attempt to speed preparation of its findings. "I shall insist that Mr. Hopkins nomination be referred to the senate commerce committee for consideration so that these charges of political activity in the Works Progress administration may be (Continued on Page Eight)

Earlier, the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will give their annual Christmas party in the east room for members of the White House staff. They will distribute some 200 Christmas gifts.

BUCK AUCTION GREAT SUCCESS

BIG PRIZE GOES AT BID OF 3,000

2,000 In Memorial Hall For Retailers' Big Function

High prices, fast bidding and pooling of assets made the Buck auction Friday night in Memorial hall exciting entertainment for an estimated 2,000 persons.

Harold Dresbach, E. Main street, was high bidder on the major prize of the auction. He "bought" the certificate for $100 worth of merchandise from any participating store on a bid of 3,000 Bucks. Bidding on the major prize started at 1,000 bucks. Mr. Dresbach said the Bucks he used represented two automobiles, one he purchased and the other of a friend.

The second prize, $50 worth of merchandise, went to William Radcliff, of Williamsport. His bid was 2,100 bucks.

Third prize, $25 worth of merchandise was "sold" to Miss Betty Clifton, 809 N. Court street. Her bid was 2,203 Bucks, a higher bid than that made for the second prize.

Most of the bids started out in jumps of 100 Bucks then slowed down on offers of 50 and 25. Clayton Chalfin, auctioneer, completed the auction in two and a half hours. Members of the Phi Beta Psi sorority were clerks. They were kept busy counting Bucks.

Many Bids Go High

One of the most amusing features of the sale was bidding on lots of twelve bottles of pop. They brought prices from 250 to 400 Bucks. Three golf balls brought 200 Bucks. A similar price was paid for a pair of roller skates. The purchaser of a pound of candy paid 200 bucks. One basket of groceries and a ham brought 1,000 Bucks each. A little red wagon went under the hammer at 600. Nine hundred Bucks were paid for a pen and pencil set, a similar amount for a lamp.

The Buck Passing campaign, sponsored by Circleville merchants, was considered one of the most successful Christmas programs ever presented in the city in connection with the shopping season. Herman Hill, president of the Retail Merchants association, estimated that 200,000 Bucks were issued in the campaign. They were given for purchases made in the participating stores.

A large group of persons were waiting to obtain seats in the hall when the doors were opened at 7 p. m., two hours before the auction started. A total of 158 premiums was auctioned.

DIET AND HEALTH

Treating Frost-Bite With Snow Urged

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THERE IS an old rule that frost-bite should first be treated by the application of snow or ice instead of heat.

And there is good reason for this. It is sound practice.

A part of the body may be frozen for a brief time without special injury. The temporary freezing of a skin surface is followed first by a great swelling of the blood vessels. Then there is constriction of the vessels with tingling, loss of function, numbness and mottling or pallor.

If the freezing is intense or prolonged, blood clots will form in the frozen part.

When heat is applied, the part becomes red and swollen, serum escapes into the tissue spaces, and this causes pressure on the blood vessels so that circulation is stopped to that region and gangrene is likely to result.

Proper Treatment

This serious consequence may occur from either prolonged freezing or from too rapid thawing.

The proper treatment of frost-bite is to rub the part mildly first and try to reestablish circulation gradually. Then rub with snow, ice or iced water, leaving the application of heat to the last.

Do not go into a warm room if you are frost-bitten until the circulation has been established and you feel that you are warm anyhow. The reasons for this are explained below under the discussion of constitutional effects of frost-bite.

After the circulation is established, the tingling and discomfort may be assuaged by the application of glycerin or glycerin in combination with boric acid or tincture of iodine. Another remedy is equal parts of phenol and sweet spirits of nitrous ether. The area is painted every three hours for three or four times. A scab is formed. Alcohol or whiskey applied locally is also recommended.

Parts Affected

The parts most likely to have frost-bite are the nose, cheeks and fingers because the circulation in these extremities is not vigorous. The same is true of the toes, but they are more likely to be protected from direct exposure to the cold.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The secondary redness from a frost-bite usually disappears within a few days, but it may be permanent or recur as a local spot of pallor when the part is again chilled.

The constitutional effects of extreme cold are, first, stimulation, followed by depression, pain, numbness and extreme drowsiness.

When Napoleon's soldiers were retreating from Moscow, they would rush to any campfire they saw and begin to thaw themselves out. This resulted in many deaths due to small hemorrhages everywhere in the body. That is why I warned above that you should not bring a chilled person suddenly into a warm room.

Recovery has followed proper treatment even when the bodily temperature has fallen as low as 78 degrees (normal 98) and after a person has been buried in snow for five days.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Eminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

KNISLEY JOB IN DOUBT

Clock Stopping Termed Illegal By Finance Chairman

COLUMBUS, Dec. 24 — The 'swan song' of the Senate's 'hatchet men' may well be defeat for Governor Martin L. Davey's last minute appointments, it was indicated here today.

No agreement between them and the governor on the confirmation of appointments at the special session to convene Dec. 30 has been reached, William R. Foss, chairman of the finance committee said today.

"There has been no discussion or agreement between the so-called 'hatchet men' and the governor to my knowledge," Senator Foss said. "And I think I would know about it if there had been—I am one of the hatchet men," he added.

Nearly All Republican

Senator Foss added that he didn't think the governor's appointments would be confirmed. "Ninety percent of the state government is Republican anyhow, why not let them have it all?" he said.

Earlier reports had it that Governor Davey and the hatchet men—Senators who scuttled much of the governor's legislative wishes—had reached an agreement on appointment of Clarence H. Knisely, defeated candidate for re-election as state treasurer, as a member of the industrial commission, and reappointment of Charles S. Leasure as chairman of the Unemployment Compensation Commission.

Senator Foss pointed out that although Governor Davey has announced his intention of calling the special session for Dec. 31, the call has not yet gone out.

Mr. Foss said he would oppose the confirmation of Mr. Knisely.

11:59 Legality Cited

Possibility of "stopping the clock" in the Senate in order to prolong debate beyond midnight of Dec. 31 when the special session is legally terminated was scouted by Senator Foss who pointed out that many of the senators' terms expire at midnight, and that they could not legally sit as senators past midnight although the hands of the clock were fixed at 11:59 p. m.

Roosevelt Nearing Reconstruction of Cabinet; Many Other Posts Remain Open

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—(UP)—President Roosevelt today named completion of reconstruction of his cabinet for the first time since inception of the New Deal in 1933. Possible additional vacancies, however, may complicate the task.

No successor has been named yet for Attorney General Cummings, who will leave the cabinet some time in January. Appointment of Works Progress Administration Hopkins to the commerce secretaryship, vacated by resignation of Daniel C. Roper, filled the other existing gap.

Possibility has been expressed that the Roper and Cummings retirements have not completed the shifts to be expected. Secretary of War Woodring and Secretary of Navy Swanson have been mentioned most frequently as retirement possibilities.

Outside the cabinet a score of vacancies exist in the government, including a supreme court post, numerous circuit and district judgeships and the ambassadorship to Soviet Russia.

Roosevelt Not In Hurry

Mr. Roosevelt has indicated he is in no hurry to fill the attorney-generalship. Persons most frequently mentioned for the post have been Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, defeated for reelection, and Solicitor-General Robert H. Jackson. Expressions of congressional opposition to Murphy have been voiced. Chances of Jackson were thought to be lessened by geographical circumstances. Jackson is a New Yorker. Four of the ten cabinet posts are now held by New Yorkers; addition of Jackson would give New York 50 percent representation.

The supreme court vacancy has existed since the death of Justice Cardozo last July. It is expected to be filled shortly after congress convenes. Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard law school, Judge Harold Stephens of the U. S. court of appeals, and Murphy have figured in speculation for the place.

The President also must fill a number of vacancies on the federal circuit and district benches. Many of these were created by the last congress which authorized appointment of several additional jurists.

The positions of director of the bureau of the budget and comptroller-general have been unfilled for several years and there is every indication that Mr. Roosevelt does not contemplate filling either one. Both posts are filled by acting officers.

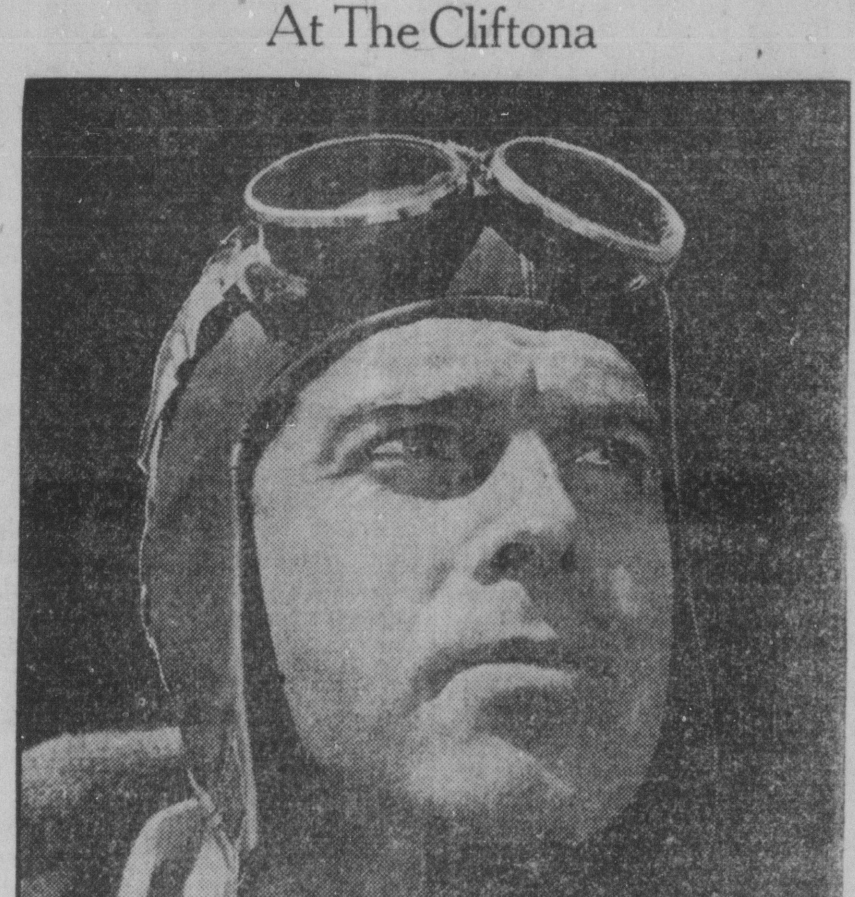

T.V.A. Director Needed

has become vacant with the decision of James Roosevelt to leave his father's office for a motion picture executive post. The Tennessee Valley Authority is shy one director since Mr. Roosevelt's ouster of Arthur E. Morgan. It is not believed likely that this post will be filled until determination of litigation instituted by Morgan charging the President's ouster action was illegal.

Other vacant positions include an assistant secretaryship of treasury and a place on the Federal Reserve board.

PLAYING an airplane builder and World War flying ace, Fred MacMurray heads the cast of "Men with Wings," the drama of the men who made history in the skies. With Ray Milland and Louise Campbell also in lead roles, the picture opens Sunday at the Clifftone theatre.

Circleville's merchandising and decorative program was a success this year because of the fine spirit of cooperation shown by the city's leaders. It is such spirit as this that leads communities to greater accomplishments, and our community is definitely on the up-grade.

The Circleville Chamber of Commerce and the Circleville Retail Merchants Association take this opportunity to publicly express appreciation of general participation in the Christmas program.

This year the decorating committee bought 160 sets of Christmas tree lights, 80 trees, standards and clamps and drilled sidewalk holes for the erection of the trees, all at a cost of about $450. This equipment all will be stored and may be used again. Electric current for the tree lighting was provided gratis by the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co.

We have one Christmas season behind us, another twelve months away. Persons who have suggestions for decoration next year should communicate as soon as possible with officers of either the Retail Merchants Association or the Chamber of Commerce.

God's Great Love ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher Scripture—Matthew 2:1-12.

The Wise Men follow the star in the east to be the first to worship the Infant Jesus in the manger at Bethlehem.

The Wise Men find the Babe with His father and mother in the stable, and gave Him gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh.

An angel appears to the simple shepherds who are watching their flocks on the hillside outside of Bethlehem. They are afraid.

In a dream Joseph is warned to flee into Egypt or Herod will kill the Holy Babe. (GOLDEN TEXT—John 3:16.)

SCHOOLS URGED ON TO BATTLE WITH REALITIES

WASHINGTON (UP)—"Bring the world crisis into the classroom" is the aim of John W. Studebaker, commissioner of education, Department of the Interior. Convinced that schools have been wasting time and effort by drilling students in parrot-like repetition of facts which have no bearing on present day reality, Studebaker suggests that important broadcasts, such as Adolf Hitler's speech on the Czech crisis should be assigned as homework. He proposed that class time be devoted to a discussion of the meaning of present day events.

According to Studebaker, "the student who missed hearing Neville Chamberlain or Hitler because he was forced by an inflexible school program to conjugate German verbs or to report on the Elizabethan period of English history, was deprived of some real education."

"He missed the significant experience as a close observer of a performance which future history will accurately."

FESTIVE DISHES
MARK YULETIDE
AS IN OLD DAYS

Adopted Americans Keep Traditions of Past
In Europe

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 24—(UP)—Wisconsin housewives today prepared oplatke, lutefisk, spare ribs, stuffed goose, and gingerbread and waffles, for Christmas is here. Traditionally a day of feasting and rejoicing throughout the world, Christmas in Wisconsin will bring to festive boards a variety of foods as diverse as the nationalities which compose the population of this state.

Each town in itself, and towns within cities, will again take on the atmosphere of Old Country villages as mothers stew over leaping pots in their kitchens. Czechs Not So Gay Far removed, at least for a while, from the swift pace of the streamlined modern world is the large Czechoslovakian community in Kenosha where lace tablecloths are laid with plates covered with oplatke, honey cracker, the national dish of the homeland. It will be a sadder Christmas there than in past years, for the homeland has been carved to rebuild the map of Europe during the last year, but as one housewife said, Christmas without oplatke is like Christmas without Santa Claus. Forebears of the Czechoslovakian children will be crossed with honey again, though—the mother's blessing for a sweet and nourishing new year.

Sugar waffles baked on specially imported irons made only in Belgium and covered with nutmeg will be served in the homes of Belgian families living near Green Bay. Most of the homeland customs of Christmas time have been abandoned by the Belgians, but waffles and hot chocolate still remain in almost all of the homes.

Norse Children Mask

For the children of Norwegian families living near Eltrick the holiday season is another Halloween. Disguised and masked, the children run from house to house, knocking on doors until they are opened. Once inside, the children dance and caper until their hosts and hostesses identify them and provide food and drink.

Most Norwegians celebrate the birth of Christ with a feast of lutefisk, Norse fish delicacy, but some sit down on Christmas eve to eating platters of spare ribs.

Best known of the Christmas dishes prepared in Wisconsin, however, is the Watertown stuffed goose. Old German burghers spend weeks cramming specially prepared noodles down the throats of geese to produce the over-fatened fowl for table throughout the country.

Smoked Goose Prepared

In Sheboygan, Milwaukee, Port Washington and other German cities, Gaenseklein — smoked geese — stuffed with minced sugared fruits, kaffir lime and gingerbread will be served with light Pilsner beer or any coffee.

Cookies are an important side of the German meals. Pfefferkuchen — hard, nut-like little cakes covered with anise — and rich butter cookies sprinkled with multi-colored sugar are the most common. Bakery shops feature gingerbread cakes cut to the form of

State Divided Into 12
Hybrid Corn Districts

The Ohio farmer has adopted hybrid corn as his own and prospects for 1939 are that nearly all the corn grown in the state for feeding purposes will be of the new hybridized varieties, according to Director Earl H. Hanefeld of the Department of Agriculture.

The department has zoned the state into 12 different districts and has recommended varieties of hybrid corn particularly adapted for each area. This work has been done by the Agricultural Extension Service Ohio State university and the Ohio Agricultural experiment station.

The Circleville area is in the tenth zone.

Eleven different kinds of hybrid corn have been recommended to farmers here.

Different types of corn are recommended for special plantings.

Farmers in Pickaway County are among those now growing special types of hybrid corn for seed purposes. Among them are J. Wright Noecker, Route No. 1, Ashville; Walter Hedges, Route No. 2, Ashville; Roger Hedges, Ashville; Howard N. Hedges, Route 1, Ashville; Louis Quillen, Route 1, Ashville; Paul Cromley, Route 1, Ashville.

Most of the Pickaway county farmers who are raising hybrid corn are growing what is known as U. S. 65 and U. S. 52, early and late varieties respectively. Both are very tall varieties and raise

At Monroe, Swiss children will perform intricate gymnastic drills and dances while proud parents beam and drink beer at the Turnhalle.

Much of the spirit of the Old World remains, but with the replacement of the sleigh and horse by the streamlined automobile, the old-fashioned wine cellar by a chromium-finished tavern, old customs fade and die. LIFE PRISONER
OFFERS THANKS
IN 6,000 WORDS

FLORENCE, Ariz. (UP)—William Faltin, who has been in the Arizona state prison longer than any other man and who may be there for the rest of his life, has written a 6,000-word letter thanking an Arizona woman for a $1 bill a poppy, and some verses of Scripture.

He did not know her name and probably never will, for the unidentified woman sent her gifts through the governor's office, "for the convict longest confined in the state prison at Florence."

Faltin, who has been there 28 years serving a life sentence for murder, philosophically wrote:

"Life's length is not measured by the hours and days, but by that which we have done therein for our country and kind. A useless life is short, if it last a century, but that of Alexander was long as the life of the oak, though he died at 33.

"We may do much in a few years, and we may do nothing in a lifetime. If we but eat and drink and sleep, and let everything go on around us as it pleases, we might as well not live at all. To defend weakness against strength, the friendless against the great, the oppressed against the oppressor."

He sent with his letter a gift in return, a serving tray made in his cell.

RANSOM FOR A PEOPLE

THE trip of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Nazi finance minister, to London, is interesting. It seems unlike any other foreign mission in European history. For if reports are true, he went "to barter human beings for cash." That is, to see how much he could get for the German Jews, what England and other civilized powers would pay Pharaoh-Hitler to let the children of Israel go.

As an American editor puts it: "To the Nazis, the persecuted Jews have become an asset. If the soft-hearted world wishes to rescue them from further terror, it will have to pay the persecutors."

The Jews are trying to ransom themselves, but all they have will not be enough to satisfy the Nazis. So the famous tale of Hebrew persecution 3,000 years ago in Egypt is being repeated.

Will some new Moses rise up now and compel a German Pharaoh to "let his people go"? Will a new "Red Sea" engulf these modern persecutors?

The sea of war, perhaps. Or of bankruptcy, brought about by a boycott on the part of free and normal nations.

A LISTENING LAW-MAKER

AN Illinois state legislator from Chicago has hit on a novel method for finding out what his constituents expect of him. He has called a conference of voters to meet five days before the January session starts. Northwestern University, whose downtown campus is in his district, is co-operating with him.

At the conference the constituents will do the speech-making. There will be a general discussion of state government problems in which they are particularly concerned. A resolutions committee will meet two days ahead of the conference to prepare a program, in order to avoid aimless and irrelevant talk at the main affair. There will probably be a permanent committee to keep in touch with the legislator when he is in Springfield.

Such an organization, politically controlled and promoting selfish interests, could do much harm. If it is handled with intelligent civic spirit, however, it may become truly useful. It may make everyone concerned more aware of public issues, stimulate discussion, and assure an honest and constructive attitude on the part of one legislator, at least. The progress of the scheme is worth watching.

There are too many places this month where the ideal is war on earth, ill will to men.

Another echo of Mr. Chamberlain's wonderful "Peace of Munich"—Czechoslovakia itself goes totalitarian. And now John Bull begins to snort a little.

Why are there always at least five members in a jury who look as though they had just come from a taxidermist's?

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

FCC "NOMINATED FOR DECAPITATION"

WASHINGTON—Early in the New Deal, President Roosevelt conceived the idea of putting all the communications systems of the country under the control of one bureau.

This was not a bad idea. Hitherto, the telegraph and telephone companies had been regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which regarded them as step-children, while the rapidly expanding radio industry was regulated by a lethargic Radio Commission created by Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

So to regulate radio, telegraph and telephone there was created the Federal Communications Commission. Conceived of good intentions, spawned in haste and fed on incompetency, this agency has turned into a polyglot monstrosity, neither man, fowl nor beast.

With the possible exception of the Bituminous Coal Commission, it is the most inefficient and ineffectual institution in Washington.

Chief reason FCC has become such a hybrid is that into its seven commissioner-ships went men of every political hue, every business background, with no regard for cohesion, efficiency, or knowledge of communication.

Seven men holding equal power on any commission have a hard time agreeing, but when into the hoppers are dumped an ex-Governor of Rhode Island, a politician from Mississippi, a retired naval officer, an ex-tax commissioner of New York, a college professor from Oklahoma, and a Hoover campaign manager in Ohio, the resultant chaos is understandable.

NEW CHAIRMAN

To Frank R. McNinch in 1937 fell the lot of straightening out the kinks in the tangled skein of federal communications. It was a tough job, and he was picked for it because he had done somewhat the same job for the Federal Power Commission.

Appointed to that body by Herbert Hoover in 1930, when the Federal Power Commission was the subject of a congressional investigation, McNinch revitalized it, made it one of the most effective in Washington.

Hoover had rewarded McNinch because, although a Democrat, he had helped defeat Al Smith in North Carolina in 1928. But McNinch turned out to be more of a New Dealer than a Hooverite, and Roosevelt continued the policy of putting him in responsible places.

The Federal Communications Commission, however, has been a tough nut for him to crack. He has swept out the Commission's red-tape-laden law department, and is now in the process of house-cleaning the Examining Department. He has other plans in prospect.

But even if he succeeds in ousting all incompetent subordinates, McNinch still is confronted with the chaos-breeding board of seven members. And until there is a wholesale decapitation the FCC will continue to be one of the festering sores of the New Deal.

A study of social security account numbers in New York showed that 2.7 percent of men and women in the state did not know their ages. The birthday cake candle-makers should do something about this.

The chief cause of death on the highway is not speed or liquor but the practice of calling homicide an unavoidable accident.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

BY M. E. CORNE

READ THIS FIRST:
Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, is on her way to the Manor, the luxurious home of the wealthy Witherspoon family. She has agreed to take the place of her friend, Kitty, for a week, running the private salon of old Mrs. Witherspoon, an eccentric semi-invalid. The Witherspoon chauffeur takes her to the Manor, where she meets the housekeeper and then the parlor maid. Before retiring Elsie is told to change into her uniform to give Mrs. Witherspoon, Sr., her nightly facial. She meets her maid, Eliza. Elsie finds her employer is a withered old woman with a sadly misplaced sense of vanity. After bumping into Mrs. Witherspoon, Jr., in the darkness of the salon, Elsie is awakened in the middle of the night by a falling chair in the same room. Next day Elsie meets Daphne, the granddaughter, and Della Craig, an actress, who is a house guest. Both strike her as queer.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER SEVEN

MY NEXT appointment was with Mrs. Horace, Jr., and she arrived before I had finished with Della. In the daylight she was plainer than ever. Clearly she had no use for beauty treatments. Her skin was dry and spotted and her mouse-colored hair straggled forlornly here and there. Beside Della she looked like a dowdy old maid. I think she felt this, too, for she stood uncertainly in the center of the floor watching the actress and twisting her hands at her sides.

"Letty, darling!" Della gushed all over her. "Fancy seeing you here! I would have sworn you had never in all your life set foot in a beauty parlor!"

"I'm—I'm having a manicure," Mrs. Horace, Jr., stammered, and never twice a muscle though I knew she was down in the book for a shampoo and a wave and a facial.

"Tonight is going to be too thrilling! I can scarcely wait!" Della twittered like a bird. "Aren't you just too excited, darling?"

"Yes, yes, of course." Poor Mrs. Horace, Jr., looked more and more ill at ease. I knew that she wanted Della to get through and get out. She wanted her treatments in private, and not to blame her. When a woman, a middle-aged woman, decides to fix herself up, she always feels embarrassed and sort of ashamed. Funny, too, I have never been able to figure it out. You would think making the best of what God gave you was something wicked and shameful!

"Really, it's marvelous the way Mrs. Witherspoon keeps up! Fancy presiding over a grand ball at her age!"

"Yes, marvelous," Mrs. Horace, Jr., agreed, and her face turned pale. I thought she was going to faint. There was something very peculiar about this particular grand ball, but I could not put my finger on what it was. No one, it appeared, save Della Craig and old lady Witherspoon, was enthused over the prospect. But, as I said before, it was none of my business what went on at the Manor. I put the finishing touches to Della's nails.

"Thank you so much." Ravishingly she smiled upon me and that was all.

"You're welcome," I returned, making it plain that I had not expected a tip. But you could not get under a thick skin like hers. She sailed from the salon like a tragedy queen in the third act. Personally, I was glad to see the last of her.

"All right, Mrs. Witherspoon," I said, and glanced out at the lobby clock. It was three minutes until ten. "I'll have to leave you for a moment, if you don't mind," I added, for it was time to wash her mother-in-law's face.

"No, I don't mind," she said, as if it were a relief to postpone the inevitable.

"Be back in a jiffy," I promised, and hurried to the private entrance of Mrs. Witherspoon's apartment.

"Yes?" Eliza opened the door so quickly that I knew she had been waiting for me. Her sunken eyes were red-rimmed and swollen, as though she had been crying. She did not meet my gaze directly, but looked down at the floor as I passed by her.

"Good morning, Mrs. Witherspoon," I spoke cheerily to the muffled figure in the bed.

"Get me out of this thing!" snapped my employer, sitting up. "It's as dry as a Kansas prairie!" I wet my sponge and wiped away the mask. It fell into stiff pieces at my feet.

"Ah, that's better!" She moved her face from side to side. "Wonderful stuff, but painful!"

"Yes," I said, thinking how ghastly she looked in the morning light. "Will there be anything else?"

"Of course there's something else! Think I'm going to sit around with my face naked? Get my beauty box from the dressing table and make me up!"

I did as instructed. When I had finished she examined her face critically.

"Bah!" she exclaimed in disgust. "I look like a ghost! Give me that rouge box!" She snatched it from my hand and dabbed her cheeks liberally. "There!" she said, when she had herself looking like a sun-burst. "That's something like it! You may go now, but mind my appointment for this evening! Eight o'clock!"

"I'll remember," I said, and I did. The old lady was down in Kitty's black book for everything—shampoo, wave, manicure and facial.

"Eliza will wheel me into the salon. See that you are prompt! Tonight is an important occasion, and I want to look my best."

"I'll be there," I assured her, and wondered why on earth she could not come in during hours like a civilized person instead of keeping a girl waiting about half the night. But, I decided, perhaps that was why she had built the salon, so that she could come in when she pleased. I returned the makeup box to the dressing table. "Good morning, Mrs. Witherspoon."

"Oh? Oh—er—good morning." "Mr. Horace to see you." Eliza appeared suddenly from nowhere. "Wants to see me, does he?"

Mrs. Witherspoon's thin lips formed a determined scarlet line. "Send him in! I have something to say to that young man!" And as I went away I heard her furiously scolding her only son.

As I re-entered the salon I was startled by the sound of voices. Mrs. Horace, Jr., in the third anteroom, was speaking with someone I could not see. I paused uncertainly in the lobby.

RANSOM FOR A PEOPLE

THE trip of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Nazi finance minister, to London, is interesting. It seems unlike any other foreign mission in European history. For if reports are true, he went "to barter human beings for cash." That is, to see how much he could get for the German Jews, what England and other civilized powers would pay Pharaoh-Hitler to let the children of Israel go.

As an American editor puts it: "To the Nazis, the persecuted Jews have become an asset. If the soft-hearted world wishes to rescue them from further terror, it will have to pay the persecutors."

The Jews are trying to ransom themselves, but all they have will not be enough to satisfy the Nazis. So the famous tale of Hebrew persecution 3,000 years ago in Egypt is being repeated.

Will some new Moses rise up now and compel a German Pharaoh to "let his people go"? Will a new "Red Sea" engulf these modern persecutors?

The sea of war, perhaps. Or of bankruptcy, brought about by a boycott on the part of free and normal nations.

A LISTENING LAW-MAKER

AN Illinois state legislator from Chicago has hit on a novel method for finding out what his constituents expect of him. He has called a conference of voters to meet five days before the January session starts. Northwestern University, whose downtown campus is in his district, is co-operating with him.

At the conference the constituents will do the speech-making. There will be a general discussion of state government problems in which they are particularly concerned. A resolutions committee will meet two days ahead of the conference to prepare a program, in order to avoid aimless and irrelevant talk at the main affair. There will probably be a permanent committee to keep in touch with the legislator when he is in Springfield.

Such an organization, politically controlled and promoting selfish interests, could do much harm. If it is handled with intelligent civic spirit, however, it may become truly useful. It may make everyone concerned more aware of public issues, stimulate discussion, and assure an honest and constructive attitude on the part of one legislator, at least. The progress of the scheme is worth watching.

There are too many places this month where the ideal is war on earth, ill will to men.

Another echo of Mr. Chamberlain's wonderful "Peace of Munich"—Czechoslovakia itself goes totalitarian. And now John Bull begins to snort a little.

Why are there always at least five members in a jury who look as though they had just come from a taxidermist's?

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

FCC "NOMINATED FOR DECAPITATION"

WASHINGTON—Early in the New Deal, President Roosevelt conceived the idea of putting all the communications systems of the country under the control of one bureau.

This was not a bad idea. Hitherto, the telegraph and telephone companies had been regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which regarded them as stepchildren, while the rapidly expanding radio industry was regulated by a lethargic Radio Commission created by Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

So to regulate radio, telegraph and telephone there was created the Federal Communications Commission. Conceived of good intentions, spawned in haste and fed on incompetency, this agency has turned into a polyglot monstrosity, neither man, fowl nor beast.

With the possible exception of the Bituminous Coal Commission, it is the most inefficient and ineffectual institution in Washington.

Chief reason FCC has become such a hybrid is that into its seven commissioner-ships went men of every political hue, every business background, with no regard for cohesion, efficiency, or knowledge of communication.

Seven men holding equal power on any commission have a hard time agreeing, but when into the hoppers are dumped an ex-Governor of Rhode Island, a politician from Mississippi, a retired naval officer, an ex-tax commissioner of New York, a college professor from Oklahoma, and a Hoover campaign manager in Ohio, the resultant chaos is understandable.

NEW CHAIRMAN

To Frank R. McNinch in 1937 fell the lot of straightening out the kinks in the tangled skein of federal communications. It was a tough job, and he was picked for it because he had done somewhat the same job for the Federal Power Commission.

Appointed to that body by Herbert Hoover in 1930, when the Federal Power Commission was the subject of a congressional investigation, McNinch revitalized it, made it one of the most effective in Washington.

Hoover had rewarded McNinch because, although a Democrat, he had helped defeat Al Smith in North Carolina in 1928. But McNinch turned out to be more of a New Dealer than a Hooverite, and Roosevelt continued the policy of putting him in responsible places.

The Federal Communications Commission, however, has been a tough nut for him to crack. He has swept out the Commission's red-tape-laden law department, and is now in the process of house-cleaning the Examining Department. He has other plans in prospect.

But even if he succeeds in ousting all incompetent subordinates, McNinch still is confronted with the chaos-breeding board of seven members. And until there is a wholesale decapitation the FCC will continue to be one of the festering sores of the New Deal.

A study of social security account numbers in New York showed that 2.7 percent of men and women in the state did not know their ages. The birthday cake candle-makers should do something about this.

The chief cause of death on the highway is not speed or liquor but the practice of calling homicide an unavoidable accident.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

BY M. E. CORNE

READ THIS FIRST:

Elsie Ritter, a beauty shop operator, is on her way to the Manor, the luxurious home of the wealthy Witherspoon family. She has agreed to take the place of her friend, Kitty, for a week, running the private salon of old Mrs. Witherspoon, an eccentric semi-invalid. The Witherspoon chauffeur takes her to the Manor, where she meets the housekeeper and then the parlor maid. Before retiring, Elsie is told to change into her uniform to give Mrs. Witherspoon, Sr., her nightly facial. She meets her maid, Elsie. Elsie finds her employer is a withered old woman with a sadly misplaced sense of vanity. After bumping into Mrs. Witherspoon, Jr., in the darkness of the salon, Elsie is awakened in the middle of the night by a falling chair in the same room. Next day Elsie meets Daphne, the granddaughter, and Della Craig, an actress, who is a house guest. Both strike her as queer.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER SEVEN

MY NEXT appointment was with Mrs. Horace, Jr., and she arrived before I had finished with Della. In the daylight she was plainer than ever. Clearly she had no use for beauty treatments. Her skin was dry and spotted and her mouse-colored hair straggled forlornly here and there. Beside Della she looked like a dowdy old maid. I think she felt this, too, for she stood uncertainly in the center of the floor watching the actress and twisting her hands at her sides.

"Letty, darling!" Della gushed all over her. "Fancy seeing you here! I would have sworn you had never in all your life set foot in a beauty parlor!"

"I'm—I'm having a manicure," Mrs. Horace, Jr., stammered, and I never twitched a muscle though I knew she was down in the book for a shampoo and a wave and a facial.

"Tonight is going to be too thrilling! I can't wait!" Della twittered like a bird. "Aren't you just too excited, darling?"

"Yes, yes, of course," Poor Mrs. Horace, Jr., looked more and more ill at ease. I knew that she wanted Della to get through and get out. She wanted her treatments in private, and I did not blame her. When a woman, a middle-aged woman, decides to fix herself up, she always feels embarrassed and sort of ashamed. Funny, too, I have never been able to figure it out. You would think making the best of what God gave you was something wicked and shameful!

"Really, it's marvelous the way Mrs. Witherspoon keeps up! Fancy presiding over a grand ball at her age!"

"Yes, marvelous," Mrs. Horace, Jr., agreed, and her face turned so gray I thought she was going to faint. There was something very peculiar about this particular grand ball, but I could not put my finger on what it was. No one, it appeared, save Della Craig and old lady Witherspoon, was enthused over the prospect. But, as I said before, it was none of my business what went on at the Manor. I put the finishing touches to Della's nails.

"Thank you so much." Ravishingly she smiled upon me and that was all.

"You're welcome," I returned, making it plain that I had not expected a tip. But you could not get under a thick skin like hers. She sailed from the salon like a tragedy queen in the third act. Personally, I was glad to see the last of her.

"All right, Mrs. Witherspoon," I said, and glanced out at the lobby clock. It was three minutes until ten. "I'll have to leave you for a moment, if you don't mind," I added, for it was time to wash her mother-in-law's face.

"No, I don't mind," she said, as if it were a relief to postpone the inevitable.

I wet my sponge and wiped away the mask. It fell into stiff places at my feet.

"Ah, that's better!" She moved her face from side to side. "Wonderful stuff, but painful!"

"Of course there's something else! Think I'm going to sit around with my face naked? Get my beauty box from the dressing table and make me up!"

"I'll remember," I said, and I did. The old lady was down in Kitty's black book for everything—shampoo, wave, manicure and facial.

But, I decided, perhaps that was why she had built the salon, so that she could come in when she pleased. I returned the makeup box to the dressing table.

Sen. Bailey, D., N. C., will succeed the late Sen. Copeland, D., N. Y., as chairman of the commerce committee. Coalition leaders hope that Bailey, as an influential member of the anti-New Deal bloc, will insist that Hopkins answer all charges made against his administration of W. P. A.

May Testify

A Republican spokesman, surveying the committee membership, predicted that Hopkins would be called on to testify at public hearings, and that Bailey, McNary and Sens. Clark, D., Mo., and Vandenberg, R., Mich., would demand a reply to charges that the W. P. A. participated in the recent election campaigns in violation of the United States criminal code and the corrupt practices act.

One prominent Republican, who refused to be quoted, said that Hopkins also would be asked to comment on reports that he once told a friend: "We'll spend and spend, and tax and tax, and elect and elect." Hopkins recently denied having made such a statement.

Speculation that Hopkins' appointment was intended as a boost toward 1940 was regarded as a determining factor in the coalition drive to refuse confirmation of his appointment.

SEVEN U.S. ARMY MEN KILLED BY STRANGE BLAST

Airplane Falls In Flames Near Alabama Town; Cause Mystery

The bomber which crashed during a rain storm near LaGrange, Ga., Nov. 18, killing eight soldiers. It was raining hard when the plane crashed last night. It flew low over Uniontown soon after 7 p. m. suggesting that the pilot was not sure of his way. Soon after it had passed over, there was a terrific explosion which, Uniontown residents said, was accompanied by a burst of flames and rattled the windows of houses for miles around. The explosion was heard by residents as far as 20 miles away.

The plane apparently settled to the ground in many pieces. The pieces fell over the rich, black soil of this farming country, which, because of heavy rains, was a thick, sticky gumbo. The condition of the dirt roads made the task of reaching the wreckage difficult and slowed the work of salvage. Note books and the other personal papers of the victims were found scattered about.

The plane was en route to Mitchell Field, N. J., from its base at Hamilton Field, Cal., and the flight was said to have been an unofficial one. It was said that the plane was not carrying bombs, thus eliminating one source for the explosion. Army officials said it was highly unlikely that it had been struck by lightning.

The World as Seen by Christmas Candle-Light

What a remarkable contradiction it is that the feeble gleam of a Christmas candle should have greater power to light human paths of the future than all the giant searchlights of science!

In that light that came from Bethlehem, the harshness and roughness of life are mellowed. Hearts are warmed toward other hearts as no sunlight can warm them. Eyes filled with kindness for fellow men cannot see in this magical candle-glow, the distinctions of race or color, rank or station, wealth or poverty.

Mankind does not need more light on its problems today — but only that cleaner, friendlier light that comes from its Christmas candles. May YOUR Christmas be a happy one.

AT THE CIRCLE
Jackie Cooper is one of Hollywood's most "wanted" actors. But three years ago the sages of the cinema capital sadly shook their head and opined that Jackie Cooper of "Skippy," "The Champ" and other such famous pictures was through and all washed up. But Monogram Pictures decided that young Cooper had plenty of ability and wasn't just a cute kid. As a result he was given the title role in "Boy of the Streets" which proved to be one of the year's outstanding productions. His next picture, "Gangster's Boy," opens Sunday at the Circle Theatre.

The bomber which crashed during a rain storm near LaGrange, Ga., Nov. 18, killing eight soldiers. It was raining hard when the plane crashed last night. It flew low over Uniontown soon after 7 p. m. suggesting that the pilot was not sure of his way. Soon after it had passed over, there was a terrific explosion which, Uniontown residents said, was accompanied by a burst of flames and rattled the windows of houses for miles around. The explosion was heard by residents as far as 20 miles away.

The plane apparently settled to the ground in many pieces. The pieces fell over the rich, black soil of this farming country, which, because of heavy rains, was a thick, sticky gumbo. The condition of the dirt roads made the task of reaching the wreckage difficult and slowed the work of salvage. Note books and the other personal papers of the victims were found scattered about.

The plane was en route to Mitchell Field, N. J., from its base at Hamilton Field, Cal., and the flight was said to have been an unofficial one. It was said that the plane was not carrying bombs, thus eliminating one source for the explosion. Army officials said it was highly unlikely that it had been struck by lightning.

The World as Seen by Christmas Candle-Light

What a remarkable contradiction it is that the feeble gleam of a Christmas candle should have greater power to light human paths of the future than all the giant searchlights of science!

In that light that came from Bethlehem, the harshness and roughness of life are mellowed. Hearts are warmed toward other hearts as no sunlight can warm them. Eyes filled with kindness for fellow men cannot see in this magical candle-glow, the distinctions of race or color, rank or station, wealth or poverty.

Mankind does not need more light on its problems today — but only that cleaner, friendlier light that comes from its Christmas candles. May YOUR Christmas be a happy one.

Washington Huskies Drive Through Defense For 51-37 Victory

SEATTLE, Dec. 24—(UP)—Ohio State met its second straight setback of a holiday West coast basketball tour last night, losing to the University of Washington Huskies 51-37.

The Huskies swept through the Ohio State zone defense for enough under-the-goal shots to be comfortably ahead throughout.

Roy Williamson, Washington forward led the offense, totaling 17 points, most of them in the first half.

Captain Jim Hull again was the standout in the State lineup, and scored 11 points. However, he was off form on his specialty, set-up shots, and missed many after dribbling in to shoot unguarded. Richard Baker was the leading Buckeye scorer, making 12 points.

Jack Voelker, a Washington substitute, kept down the Ohio State scoring by breaking in to retrieve back-board shots.

Washington changed its offensive, using a cross-court passing attack and working the ball into position with a fast break. The Huskies were ahead at the half, 25 to 19.

Washington won the first game 43 to 41.

The visitors left for Berkeley today where they will play California next week.

JACOBS OBTAINS BAER'S NAME ON MAY SHOW PAPER

Jacobs declined to say whether Baer's opponent would be Lou Fava of Alameda, Cal., who beat Tommy Farr of Wales last week.

RAYMOND DETRICK

WHEN Ohio Wesleyan's basketball team won from the University of Buffalo the other night, 61 to 35, it was the 150th game Ohio Wesleyan has won in basketball under Coach Ray Detrick. Now in his 13th season at Ohio Wesleyan, Detrick has seen his team lose 80 times for a fine "batting" average of 65 percent. The current Bishop team appears to be a hot contender for the Buckeye conference title.

A. A. CHIEF PLANS EYE TESTS FOR HIS ARBITERS

COLUMBUS, Dec. 24—(UP)—American Association umpires may have an incontrovertible reply next summer to the perennial shout of the irate fan: "You're blind as a bat, ump!"

President George Trautman disclosed today he was pondering a suggestion by an association fan that all umpires be compelled to pass rigid eyesight examinations and carry written proof of their visual perfection.

"This is something," mused the red-thatched league mentor. "It has been a hundred years since Abner Doubleday started this game of baseball and since then umpires have been called blind and everything else by irate fans. And this is the first time a fan ever tried to help the ump."

Trautman studied the ocular testing proposal outlined in the fan's letter some more and then commented:

"There might be something to this eye-testing business at that. An umpire with a card certifying the correctness of his sight could stop the fans cold after a close decision by merely taking the pasteboard from his pocket and reading his critics the oculist's affidavit."

Reviewing the baseball scene in general, Trautman said the game "was never in a healthier condition than it is today." He pointed that 37 leagues both started and finished the past season.

In the association, Trautman said four new managers for 1939—Myles Thomas at Toledo, Donie Bush at Louisville, Tom Sheehan at Minneapolis and Mickey Heath at Milwaukee—should "peg things up."

DUKE'S DEVILS AT BOWL SCENE

Large Crowd Of Pasadena Fans At Rail Station; Secret Work Planned

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 24—(UP)—The Blue Devils of Duke pitched their camp on the Rose Bowl front today while the University of Southern California Trojans got in a final practice before knocking off for Christmas.

A 50-piece band and half of Pasadena was at the station to meet the invading football men from Durham, N. C. undefeated, untied and unscored on, the Blue Devils shaped up as a genuine novelty to citizens of Southern California.

Duke wound up its pre-Pasadena workouts yesterday and took a sight-seeing trip through the Grand Canyon in Arizona. Coach Wallace Wade reported his squad in top shape. He said a short workout would be held this afternoon at Occidental college stadium and the heavy drills would begin Monday.

Secret Drills Planned

In keeping with his usual tactics, Wade announced that the last three days of practice would be closed even to newspapermen. The former Brown guard is known as the doorest coach in the big leagues, with competition only from Jock Sutherland of Pitt, and he kept his reputation in good order by announcing the secret workouts.

Meanwhile the Trojans took things light after a three-hour session yesterday that was devoted almost exclusively to passing. The quarterbacks, Grenville Lansdell, Oliver Day and Mickey Anderson filled the air with footballs, tossing them to the ends and half-backs alike.

Lansdell opened the current mystery of "who sent the lace scanties to two Duke players" by announcing the latest mail had brought him a pair of rubber diapers. Identity of the sender was not known and the post-mark on the package was obliterated. He refused to become angered by the gift, but merely blushed and said "it's really so embarrassing."

GIANT UNDER KNIFE

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(UP)—George Myatt, third-baseman of the New York Giants, was operated on for appendicitis last Tuesday, the club said today. Eddie Brannick, secretary of the Giants, announced that Myatt will be ready for action when the team assembles for Spring training practice at Hot Springs, Ark., this Spring.

Ohio U. Flash Rings Up Dozen More Cage Points

COLUMBUS, Dec. 24—(UP)—Frank Baumholtz, Ohio U.'s, new sophomore scoring star, added 12 points to his tally sheet and assumed the individual Ohio college scoring leadership today with 118 points.

The Bobcat forward picked up the even-dozen points last night while the Buckeye five was losing its second game of the season in six starts to George Washington university at Washington, D. C., 65 to 39.

Baumholtz' total is nine points greater than the mark of 109 netted by Chuck Chuckovits, Toledo U. senior, in six games this season.

Baumholtz and the Bobcat five will be idle until Jan. 5 when they open their Buckeye conference schedule against Ohio Wesleyan at Athens. Chuckovits returns to action Monday night against Centenary college, visiting the Toledo court.

No Ohio teams are carded for tonight although Marshall college, Huntington, W. Va., member of the Buckeye league, concludes an eastern trip at Scranton college. Besides the Centenary - Toledo meeting, Monday's program has only Ohio State vs. University of California, southern branch, at Berkeley, Cal.

In other games last night, Case staved off a last-minute Miami rally to win, 38 to 36. Herman Weiss and George Rung tallied 16 and 14 points, respectively, for The Scientists. Marshall lost to St. Francis at Brooklyn, 45 to 33; Cincinnati took Wilmington, 38 to 28.

BABE DIDRICKSON BRIDE OF BIG GEORGE ZAHARIAS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 24—(UP)—Mildred (Babe) Didrickson, once the outstanding amateur woman athlete in America, was married last night to George Zaharias, Pueblo, Colo., heavyweight wrestler.

The wedding was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Packs in suburban Kirkwood. Packs is a wrestling promoter and was best man. His wife was matron of honor.

About 30 intimate friends attended, including Leo Durocher, Brooklyn baseball manager and his wife, and St. Louis Cardinal outfielder Joe Medwick and his wife.

FIREFIGHTERS RESPOND TO TWO ALARMS FRIDAY EVE

Firemen answered two calls Friday night. They were called to Western avenue and Union street about 6:30 o'clock when a short circuit developed in an auto. The name of the car owner was not learned. Damage was slight.

A run was made to Court and Mill streets at 10:35 o'clock when a passerby noticed sparks from a chimney at the home of Charles Gilmore and thought the home was afire. Firemen said soot in the flue was burning. There was no damage.

TOBY SAW THE TOWER AND THE BELLS SWARMING WITH DWARF PHANTOMS AND ELFIN SPIRITS.

THEY WERE EVERYWHERE FLYING THROUGH THE AIR AND OVER THE HOUSES FAR BELOW, SUDDENLY THE CHIMES CEASED.

THE PHANTOMS MELTED AWAY, AND OTHER SPIRITS APPEARED, STANDING IN THE SHADOWS OF THE CHIMES.

AFTER PROMISING TOBY A GLIMPSE OF THE FUTURE AS IT MIGHT BE, THEY TOO DISAPPEARED, BY HIS SIDE STOOD THE SPIRIT OF THE CHIMES.

Present Christmas Is Far Cry From First One, But Same Principle Prevails

By Lyall Cryder

And a Babe was born in a manger, bringing salvation to mankind, the world's first Christmas present.

What a far cry our present Christmas from that of long ago, and yet we still express goodwill with gifts as did the wise men of old.

Just mingling with the throngs on the streets and in the stores these last few days, would give you a new outlook on life, surely much of worldly selfishness has been discarded at this season. A glimpse of the wrap expressions as they ponder over the choice of gifts for this one or the other of their friends, gives you a renewed feeling of the innate kindness of your neighbors.

If you are one of those who feels that Christmas is spoiled by being commercialized, just scratch beneath the surface and find out if our men of business deny help for the unfortunate on this holiday in spite of almost endless demands. Have you ever realized that much of the cheer of the season is due to the kindness of these same men who give so generously for civic decorations? What of those who have no money for holly wreaths, decorated trees and beautifully lighted holiday symbols? Would they have as much cheer if the town kept to its usual drab garb at Christmas? Not all of the spirit of Christmas is absorbed by commercialism, not as long as we share the beauty of its observance with the less fortunate.

Enter Into Spirit
This is the time for us all to forget we are worldly wise and enter into the real spirit of the day. You say the day is for children and you have none? Well that is something easily remedied; many homes have children and no way to satisfy their dreams of gifts from Santa Claus. Nothing could work out better than to look after some of these heart-felt wants.

Not all the meaning of Christmas is expressed in material gifts. The person is hard indeed whose heart is not touched by the beautiful music of the season, whether the gorgeous choruses of the "Messiah" or by the simple carols familiar to all.

How much of the glory of the works of art, expressed in sculpture and paintings, we would have missed if the artists were not influenced by the real spirit of Christmas. Some of the world's best portray and the heart stirring Christmas stories of the masters, we should count them all as gifts of the day.

Christmas comes as the glorious climax of the year. Petty feelings are submerged and outpourings of goodwill flood the world. Even the crustiest individual responds with a smile to the simple greetings of the season.

Just the pleasant words, "Merry Christmas" are all that is necessary, but speak them often as they imply so much of cheer.
